Meditațiile-produs al organizării sistemului de învățământ / Private tutoring-A product of the education system

Abstract:

Private supplementary tutoring has long been a well-spread phenomenon in several countries in the world. This phenomenon has major social and educational implications. Many authors suggest that private education is a product of the way the educational system is organized. This paper focuses on the nature and the determinants on demand for private supplementary tutoring in high-schools from Oradea. The data presented is the result of a research conducted in Oradea, part of the “Adolescents- future citizens: longitudinal study on the social exclusion process at highschool pupils” national research program.
