Metaphysical Bases of the Oecumenism

Abstract:

In this paper we are concerned with what we call “ecumenical problems”, but to begin with some data. In fact neither the Greek nor the tin language has any comprehensive termfor religion, except in the one “law” and in the other sacra, words which are equivalent to “sacred”. But the sacred has a lot of meanings: as the mysterious, the sacred fi the secret, potent, ancient, “archering”, “dream-time”. The activity of the Sacred is also: fecundity ambiguity, relativity and transmissibility.
