Abstract

In this study we investigated the influence of the socio-cultural environment on the formation of the interest and abilities of the child to draw. In the first part of the paper we defined the environment as an external factor that influences development. In the second part we outlined the possible interventions that the adult person might make that are in concordance with the development of the drawing stages and that can be analyzed in analogy with the cognitive, mobile and moral development stages.

Keywords: socio-cultural environment, development
