Abstract

The issue of motivation in school is very important for the academic achievement and has to be treated seriously by teachers, counselors and educational psychologists. Through motivation our behaviors can be explained. Self-efficacy is the belief of a person that he/she has the ability to organize and execute the course of an action in order achieve performance. This belief has an important impact on getting involved in school assignments and academic achievement. Students who have a strong sense of self-efficacy will be motivated for school and be preferment and those who have a fragile sense of self-efficacy won't engage themselves in any academic task and will experiment failure.
